This is in serious opposition to the breakup of a perfectly functioning firefighting organization that there was no thoughts of changing until a union boss wanted more power and a Premier that need union support made a political choice.
Mr Andrews, who has never volunteered to fight a bush fire in country Victoria and has limited knowledge of life in the bush has no right to push this matter based on experience!
It is an entirely political football that should never have been thrown in the air.
A minister and the top management of CFA resigned in protest to the spirit of this silly development. They have been replaced by yes-men/women and the weight of CFA is already reduced. Don't weaken the network further by butchering it's traditional and WORKING organization. The fact that the proposed replacement is more expensive than the current is just a minor but in the circumstances perfectly natural development.
Now just LEAVE THE CFA ALONE!
