My concerns with this bill relates to the lack of consultation and the rushing through of this bill in a remarkably short period of time.
This has caused disruption and discord between the career fire fights and the CFA – the government has only itself to blame for the strength of feeling against it.
In noting the NZ Fire Emergency Services which has now been implemented, their consultative process “started in 2012 and has gone through several rounds of public consultation to ensure volunteers and career firefighters supported reforms” – (taken from the WEEKLY TIMES, July 5, 2017). “Trend internationally has been towards greater integration”.
Focus has been on union intervention
