

extraction. Properly valuing this work will provide local economic and social benefits and enhance overall community resilience to climate impacts and economic changes.