I ride a motorcycle as my motorized transport, not having a car. I find these curious cable fences, being erected in many places, quite intimidating and, in many instances, very dangerous, being far too close to the traffic stream for me to pull over if necessary. In addition, where these devices are also in the middle of the road, very restrictive if one needs to turn around. This must be annoying for service vehicles as well. I shudder to entertain the thought of actually hitting one.
