Submission:

I believe that the use of school buses for passengers other than school children has the potential to be valuable for the well being of some people living in rural areas providing this is facilitated in ways that do not put the children or the drivers at risk.

Maybe issues could be avoided by *ensuring potential adult passengers are screened in a way similar to "working with children" checks

*their travel is pre booked

* total passenger numbers do not ever exceed the number of seats with seat belts available

*Other obvious and not so clear safety and well being issues being addressed.

Thank you
