Cannabis is one of the most widely researched psychoactive plants in the world. Its psychological and physiological effects are well known. We also know for a fact that the harms of cannabis are outweighed by the harms of nicotine and alcohol. Furthermore, by providing very little other legal options for altering one's consciousness we are causing more harm than good, since it allows for the use of only alcohol, nicotine and caffeine. Cannabis should be a legal option for adults, if not commercially than in their own homes. It should be regulated and there should be an increase in education about its potential harms, such as the harm it can cause to young people.
