YOUR SUBMISSION

Submission:

Regulating the sale of cannabis would allow consumers to know what they are getting. Differing strains of cannabis such as sativa and indica have differing psychoactive effects with varying contents of THC. With the sale of cannabis currently illegal (though vastly prevalent) street-consumers have no idea the potency of the cannabis they are receiving and therefore may undergo unpleasant experiences that can put them at risk. A person who doesn't drink much alcohol is not going to go out and consume a bottle of vodka with 40% alcohol content. The introduction of properly regulated and legitimate cannabis selling businesses would mitigate the current anti-social effects associated with cannabis use.
