Dear Louise Asher MP,

I am writing in regards to:

Inquiry into the conduct of the 2014 Victorian State Election

As you are well aware there are things that aren't in our control, but what is in my control is what happens next. Denis Naphine, is one of the greatest MPs of our time, he had a solid plan for Victoria. And he was pretty much convicted of such a criminal crime, when she should have won the Victorian State election (2014). A Premier who looked after paramedics, but ALP came on top (I don't know how).

He looked after the youth homeless if he was re-elected, Ararat was going to get an outdoor pool. He had given tax payers money to fix and create new police services. Located in the city, provided and funded by the Coalition government. On budget and on time. He also gave money to a men's shed, located in Taylors Hill (Or near that area) which was desperately needed. He recognised the problems.

And what was strange after waiting forty years under a Coalition government, in 2016 rail commencement was going to start from Melbourne CDB to Melbourne Airport. And if Premier Daniel Andrews really believed in rail, he would have delivered the airport rail link. And he would have never taken money from the budget Regional rail Link. But that is a story for another day.

And what was really rude was when the Peter Macullen centre which is due to be open relatively soon. Why was a private wing cancelled? And that was going to be paid from the private sector? Philanthropist they called them. And now this state government wants to build a heart hospital gave one hundred and fifty million dollars and now the health minister expects what? Donations? What a moron? When she cut their legs before? You don't need a degree in common courtesy! Useless!

If you really want to know why Denis Naphine didn't get elected you should start with the unions! Only a few people know that!

So the question is... why is there union officials at the election? And their presence has been there for a long time.

Then there was the expansion of Geelong for the roads. The revitalisation, program. The coalition government was the government who not only got the Rugby early this year. You also got the Asian cup courtesy of the Coalition government. And while Denis Napthine was almost vindicated for being a Premier he was dearly shafted. For looking after ALL Victorians. And it was an honour that Denis Napthine was Premier, and maybe we just didn't deserve him. The coalition government who not only helped the stations get fixed in the Western suburbs. But what most people don't realise is when the donut shop was given a new lease of life thanks to the Napthine government. He honoured the dignity of work. And to show his gratitude, he had asked the triple x donuts manager to give free donuts just for one day! You are simply the best! And while Denis Napthine bought his fair share of donuts. You also distributed the donuts.

You know I haven't got around to tell this to Denis Napthine, simply because I am no longer on Twitter! LOL Can you do me a favour? Can you pass him my well wishes...well wishes for been a Grandfather! Yes, tell him I said congratulations! He is an official a Pop! And he might be right; his grandchild might well be the next ABC recruit! God Bless, Peggy will be rapt! Someone to call her nana!

You know what is strange? While I am not sure why actually Premier Daniel Andrews had cancelled EWL the funny thing was it was paid for! And the Tullamarine expansion was paid by the former coalition government. They had secured that payment from the commonwealth. And speaking of the commonwealth when the Federal Labor was in government in power they too gave three billion dollars of Federal Money? And that was meant to be allocated to the Metro Rail in the city. Then when the Abbott came into power, another additional three billion dollars although that was meant to be for EWL!

You know was strange about EWL although it was of course designed for Victorian road users you would think Premier Daniel Andrews would go ahead with the project. Considering it were John Brumby and Kevin Rudd who wanted this project to go ahead! But I suppose I forgot...it's called 'your own political agenda!

And what really annoys me the most; they say that the Coalition was only for roads! What a load of shit! If it wasn't for the former government well the city wouldn't of got the Free tram Zone! Yeah that's right! No thanks for that! And seizing assets like money and drugs you can thank the coalition government.

And while I am here, whining and complaining while thanking and congratulating Denis Napthine on being a grandfather. Can you also tell him, this;

Thank-you for abolishing the Homosexual conviction law! You are the best! In everything you are and in everything you do! A living legend in your own right! And while not many Victorians would appreciate what you have done, I have man!

I know not many people would say this to you, but thank you for contribution to 'Jeff's shed'. Louise Asher, I want to take this opportunity for bringing a lot of the cultural events to Melbourne. White Knight was one of many and I hope Premier Daniel Andrews will look into expanding the popular event; to Ballarat. And there was the Latino event, which I never got around to. Due to other peoples clumsiness! And thank-you for bringing Religious events to Etihad Stadium, which was held not long ago.

Thanks for the installation for the safety measures within the city. Oh, thanks to Matthew Guy for the reform within the building industry, not only that created thousands of jobs. But this government, coalition addresses the needs of today's challenges and brings new money to this government! Well done! Yeah, that's right the tradies can thank the Coalition government. And we don't get people who offend doing drugs on the street, being prosecuted by the judge and when the judge ask him why? Well the re-offender says... 'I can get a decent meal, my meds and somewhere warm to stay'. That is not good enough. By any means standards!

I am not too sure why Premier Daniel Andrews didn't go ahead with moving VicRoads Kew to Ballarat. It's strange, I mean Louise Asher it would of brought this government additional sixty million dollars, and it would of brought new money continued money and it would of gave people jobs within the public service! I don't believe this government likes making money! And it would have created additional money. Because one of the coalition's promise was to expand struggling car parks within the eastern suburbs. He just knew what Victoria needed. He also looked at the RACV report car, and he had identified the key spots within Victorian roads. It was also the coalition government who had paid for the western suburbs rail at the Ginifer and St Albans, for it to go under!

Education? Excuse me! What is strange Louise Asher, Labor made a rampant campaign that the Coalition government had made cuts to the Tafe sector. And it was true; there was a decline in numbers! That a true story! But what people don't know is, at least the majority of Victorians Mr Naphine had invested one point two billion dollars in what we called 'Government funding' courses. But I suppose Labor failed to mention that!

Martin Pakula, had caped the fees for VCAT? Why? It's a service isn't it? Now the Coalition recognised the influx! So make money! They had raised the fees but why hinder growth? Wouldn't that give you a budget? For that sector? I don't get it!

And as for keeping you safe on PT, PSO's that was a successful implementation of Ted Ballieu! I meant the coalition government. And it was the coalition government who added additional PSO's to Melbourne CDB but to Regional areas. It was the coalition government who made trains much faster, more effective and it was Labor who signed an agreement with Metro to skip stations!

It was the coalition who had fixed the laws within the legal system, and successfully implemented one punch rule. It's strange someone had said it was 'unsustainable' well you know what? When someone has lost someone to crime, you tell them...well it's unsustainable. Hoddle street murders, I am sure no one has forgotten that!? Well you he, will be in there for life! You can thank the coalition government for that! Extra police too, was also added. Yeah you can thank coalition government. Did I mention the new police complex in the city? Yeah man, thanks to the coalition government.

You know I understand, governments State or Federal have a real responsibility. Not only to people, to the economy and to be fiscal. And of to the other hosts of complex issues! That deters governments retrospectively speaking. It is such a tough job, you know. And while I still believe that governments have the potential to make a generous amounts of money. That is yet to be seen. And no one loses their job. And what was strange why did, Lisa Neville not only consulted lawyers on Point Nepean. But why didn't the government go ahead with it? That would have created eight hundred jobs man! And it would of brought new and continued money not just for the regional area. But for government also! Wow! Talk about missed opportunity! Don't get it!

The coalition government gave a package for mothers who work at home. And still managing the family home, because he just knew, he recognised the growth within Victoria. And he to like individuals had to adapt to the changing growth within the workplace and people working from home where on the rise! This is what governments do, stimulate growth and not hinder growth. So my question is why did, Premier Daniel Andrews cut OVL? Completely? Apparently, 'it was a waste of tax payers' money' LOL!

And did I mention the roads? The additional road to the airport on Melrose drive...you can thank the coalition government. On budget and on time!

Yours truly,
