SURVEY

Q1. Encouraging social media platforms to take more action against inappropriate activities (such as bots, harassment, trolling, spreading fake news).

Response: Very good idea

I've personally started joining groups to see if bots and fake news were as bad here as they were in the USA.

It is.

Q2. The government funding media literacy campaigns to help people know what they can trust online.

Response: Very good idea

And extending how information is disseminated, where to find it and government processes.

Q3. Requiring public disclosure of all online political advertising (for example, webpages created by social media platforms showing all of the political advertising on their platform and who paid for it, or webpages created by parties/candidates showing all of the online ads they have run).

Response: Very good idea

Edward Burke (LNP) runs a facebook page called Victoria Forward. It's an LNP shitposting group.

Q4. Requiring online electoral advertising to state who paid for it.

Response: Very good idea

Transparency.

Q5. Government support for independent and trust-worthy organisations that can fact-check claims or identify misinformation.

Response: Very good idea

Q6. Using independent organisations (e.g. the Victorian Electoral Commission) as a source of reliable information about electoral candidates.

Response: Not sure

Q7. New laws requiring truth in political advertising.

Response: Very good idea

Truth is subjective.

Fact is absolute.

Q8. Are there other things you'd like to see the government do relating to social media or online advertising and elections?
