I believe that cutting workers Sunday penalties firstly and public holidays and Saturdays as totally unacceptable.

I used to work in Hospitality and found I really needed to work weekends to make ends meet . Another consideration that hasn't been taken into account is if penalties are cut then perhaps staff won't be as available to work on a lot of most companies busy periods ie weekends ..

Most people get every weekend off which I'm sure everybody would love to do but some simply can't do the rest can enjoy their weekend .

Don't take away low wage earners penalties simply to give more money to greedy businesses that take full advantage of the weekend trade (I have been a manager in hospitality) . Either stay closed for the weekend or pay your staff ..

Kind regards

Dannel Jones
