Don't block unvaccinated children from childcare and preschool

I recently learned that you are considering whether to block unvaccinated children's access to education. I think this is a preposterous imposition upon the free choice of individuals, and threatens to leave children behind.

Losing financial benefits as the Australian Government proposes is sufficient stick - then those who choose not to immunise suffer only a financial setback, but the children still receive the same opportunities.

Want to penalise non-immunisation? Find a stick that doesn't scar the children for life.
