PARLIAMENTARY STANDING COMMITTEE ON RAILWAYS (JOINT)—(Appointed 17th November, 1920).—
Mr. J. W. Billson, Mr. Solly, Mr. Toucher, and Mr. Weaver.

PARLIAMENTARY PAPERS ISSUED 14TH JULY, 1921.

Minutes of the Proceedings of the Legislative Council. No. 3.

Notices of Motion and Orders of the Day. No. 3.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

Furthermore, it is noted that the records should be kept in a secure and accessible format. Regular backups are recommended to prevent data loss in the event of a system failure or disaster. The document also mentions the need for periodic audits to ensure the integrity and accuracy of the information stored.

In addition, the text highlights the role of technology in streamlining record-keeping processes. Modern accounting software can automate many tasks, reducing the risk of human error and saving valuable time. However, it is stressed that users must be properly trained and that data security protocols are strictly followed.

The second section of the document provides a detailed overview of the various types of records that should be maintained. This includes financial statements, tax records, and legal documents. Each category is explained with specific examples and the required retention periods.

For instance, it is stated that financial statements should be kept for at least seven years, while tax records may need to be preserved for ten years or longer, depending on the jurisdiction. The document also addresses the handling of sensitive information, such as customer data and employee records, which may be subject to additional regulatory requirements.

Moreover, the text discusses the importance of clear labeling and organization of records. A well-structured filing system, whether physical or digital, is essential for efficient retrieval and management of information. The document provides guidelines on how to categorize and name files to ensure consistency across the entire system.

Finally, the section concludes by reiterating the overall goal of the document: to provide a comprehensive framework for effective record-keeping. It encourages organizations to adopt a proactive approach to data management, ensuring that all necessary information is captured, stored, and protected for future reference.

Questions.

1. MR. RYAN: To ask the Honorable the Premier, for the Honorable the Attorney-General—
1. If he will have inquiries made as to the number of residents of Victoria who, by taking up summer residence in the State of Nevada, U.S.A., have been able to obtain divorce from parties still domiciled in this State.
  2. If this practice obtains, will the Government consider the question of amending the Crimes Act 1915, so as to provide that any man or woman going through a form of marriage knowing that either of the contracting parties has husband or wife domiciled in the State of Victoria shall be liable under the bigamy section of that Act.
2. MR. RYAN: To ask the Honorable the Premier if, in view of the fact that Victorian women, who have gone through a form of marriage in Nevada with the husbands of other Victorian women, are living here under the names of the men whom they married in Nevada, the Government will take into consideration the need of amending the Crimes Act so as—(a) to empower the police to arrest such women for living under assumed names; or (b) as an alternative, to compel them to use the term "alias."
